

Reflection Paper

Sehome High School Culminating Project

Directions

To make sure you have covered each of the components (Ideas and Content, listed in the first standard of the reflection paper rubric), you will want to use the following prompts.

Write your reflection paper as an essay or friendly letter to the readers. This is a first person narrative reflection.

1. Describe your overall project; summarize what was created or accomplished.
2. Explain the process you went through highlighting the sequence of major steps and activities.
3. Describe new skills that you have learned or improved, especially those that you believe are most helpful now or that will be helpful in your future.
4. Write about any challenges or obstacles that you met and how successful you were in overcoming them.
5. Put into your own plain words how your project has benefited you in terms of your personal growth.
6. Provide some specific information about how your project has connected to or benefited the community and how you have been involved with your project beyond your normal school day.
7. Describe any modifications you had to make to your plans as you proceeded with your project.
8. From all that you have accomplished with your project, how might you apply what you have done and learned to your future?
